The remaining subject properties were voluntarily annexed between 2017 and 2024, many resulting from the expiration of previous development agreements.

Topography: The subject area does not contain any unusual physical features, such as significant slope. Properties along the area's rivers, creeks, and lakes are partially located within the 100-year floodplain. The rezoning area is within the Medina River Watershed and the Leon Creek Watershed.

Proximity To Regional Center/Premium Transit Corridor:

ISSUE:

The City of San Antonio is proposing to rezone properties that are located within two miles of an existing heavy industrial use to limit potential health, safety, and welfare conflicts between heavy industrial uses and surrounding commercial and residential uses.

ALTERNATIVES:

Denial of the requested zoning change would result in the subject properties retaining the current base and overlay zoning districts without the “ICOD-1” Industrial Compatibility Overlay District.

FISCAL IMPACT:

The applicant is the City of San Antonio. No zoning fees are required.

RECOMMENDATION:

Staff Analysis and Recommendation: Staff recommends approval.

Criteria for Review: According to Section 35-421, zoning amendments shall be based on the approval criteria below.

1. Consistency:

The subject area is located within the Heritage South Sector Plan and the ongoing SA Tomorrow Texas A&M-San Antonio Area Regional Center Plan. The proposed zoning overlay district does not require a land use consistency because the base zoning of the subject properties is not changing.

2. Adverse Impacts on Neighboring Lands:

Staff has not found evidence of likely adverse impacts on neighboring lands in relation to this proposed rezoning.

3. Suitability as Presently Zoned:

The application of the Industrial Compatibility Overlay creates added protections for less-intense commercial and residential uses while protecting the economic viability of heavy industrial uses. “ICOD-1” includes specific exceptions for existing residences, platted undeveloped lots, undeveloped unplatted lots with existing residential zoning, and nonconforming uses. The “ICOD-1” also includes a provision allowing undeveloped unplatted lots with existing zoning that allows residential uses to preserve the right to establish residential uses through a registration process.

4. Health, Safety and Welfare:

The Industrial Compatibility Overlay District would establish regulations to limit the encroachment of residential and commercial uses into established heavy industrial areas. Heavy industrial uses are more likely to include potentially hazardous components and to generate high volumes of freight traffic. A purposeful and orderly transition of uses surrounding heavy industrial areas offers multiple levels of protection:

- Protecting the economic viability of important industry by limiting uses that could interfere with the operation of existing or planned heavy industrial uses; and
- Creating safeguards for less-intense commercial and residential uses that are needed to support the city's workforce, residents, and visitors by minimizing the potential negative impacts of the operations of heavy industrial uses.

5. Public Policy:

Upon adoption of the SA Tomorrow Comprehensive Plan, City Council directed staff to implement the plan "to coordinate and guide establishment of development regulations for the long-range development of the City that will promote the public health, safety and welfare for all current and future residents of the City of San Antonio." The establishment of an overlay district "to ensure appropriate transitions between future development and heavy industrial areas" was identified an implementation priority during the planning process for the Texas A&M-San Antonio Area Regional Center.

6. Size of Tract:

The subject area is approximately 19,775 acres.

7. Other Factors:

The Planning Department hosted two informational Open Houses in April 2024 to inform property owners and owners of property within 200 feet. Mailed notice of the zoning change and Zoning Commission Public Hearing were mailed to all subject property owners, all owners of property within 200 feet of a subject property, as well as to every address on mail routes that include a subject property. Spanish translation was provided at the Open Houses, and legal notices also included Spanish translation.
