MISSION

Rooted in and inspired by San Antonio's legacy, the Mexican American Civil Rights Institute (MACRI) is the premier national organization dedicated to chronicling and advancing the Mexican American community's civil rights efforts in the U.S.

VISION

The Mexican American Civil Rights Institute envisions communities where all Americans are inspired by the Mexican American civil rights legacy and see themselves as participants and transformational leaders in the ongoing struggle for social justice, inclusion, and equity.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES AND BELIEFS

Civil rights are an expansive and significant set of rights designed to protect individuals from unfair treatment. For the Mexican American community, they are the rights of individuals to receive equal treatment and be free from discrimination including in the areas of education, employment, voting, housing, public accommodations, immigration, economic opportunity, as well as on the basis of race, ethnicity, nationality, gender, sexuality, and more. We strongly believe that all individuals should be treated with dignity and respect and are part of our common humanity.

- Our roots are in San Antonio and South Texas—San Antonio and the South Texas region are the birthplace of numerous significant Mexican American social justice organizations, leaders, and historic events that have shaped the history of civil rights in the United States.
- MACRI continues the legacy of Mexican American social justice activism and advocacy— We believe knowledge of our civil rights history inspires action to advance social justice, amplify voices, and enhance the quality of life of individuals, families and communities.

- MACRI is important for all Americans— We expand the public's understanding of the U.S. civil rights story because Mexican Americans' ongoing struggle for civil rights has created enduring change for ALL Americans, including indigenous communities and newcomers to this country.
- People power movements that promote democratic ideals— The history of Mexican American civil rights teaches us that empowered people drive and sustain movements and our democracy. We create safe spaces that educate and empower people and we stand in solidarity with other historically oppressed communities.
- Mexican American civil rights history is ongoing, dynamic, and exceedingly relevant— Telling and retelling our history of Mexican American civil rights has the power to transform our collective consciousness, lived experience, identity, resilience, and self-determination, now and into the future.

TESTIMONIALS

“It has been my hope for some years that a group of dedicated organizers would mobilize to create a physical and intellectual center where the story of Mexican American civil rights progress can be shared with our own residents as well as visitors to San Antonio. [...] Such a center would create a physical site and serve as a monument to civil rights pioneers, as well as provide a venue for academic research, for the production of books and reports, and for conferences and addresses.”

– Henry Cisneros, Former Secretary of Housing and Urban Development

“The importance of understanding the Civil Rights journey of the Latino/a/x community is integral to understanding the current and future policy directions that this country needs to focus on. I am thrilled that MACRI was set up in the cradle of so many civil rights organizations and institutions, San Antonio!”

- Erika Prosper Nirenberg, First Lady of San Antonio

Teacher Training Workshop

"This was an excellent session. I really enjoyed it and learned a lot. Thank you!" - Jennifer Hall, Social Studies Instructional Coach, Kruger Middle School, San Antonio, TX

MACRI Talks

“Wonderful session. Great event. We need many more like these.” - Aurelio Montemayor, M.Ed., Intercultural Development Research Association, San Antonio

“Thank you for the topic. Much needed educational conversation.” - Greg Miranda, Sacramento, CA

“Thank you for creating this space of reflection and learning.” - Miguel Macías-Armenta, Director, Diversity Center, University of Washington, Bothell, WA

“Thanks. This was great.” - John Trasviña, Executive Director, Generation Citizen, San Francisco
